Offg. Superintendent,
Govt. Gardens,

To

The Secretary to the Government of Mysore,
General Department, B a n g a l o r e.

Sir,

Adverting to para 4 of Government Order No.G.6737/G.A.961-1 dated 29th December 1914, directing the development of four Hill Stations in the State, I have the honor to state that about the end of last month, I made a detailed inspection of the Devarayadurga Hill with a view to find out its feasibility for being developed into a Hill Station, I note below my observations on it.

2. The Hill is easily accessible by a good road with a fine avenue for a distance of 9 miles from Tumkur Railway Station and thence 4 miles of Hill Road up to ½ mile this side of the Travellers' Bungalow. Luggage and other things are thence carried by coolies for half the mile, any number of whom are available in the village near by.

3. The Hill consists of 3 terraces, the lowest of which is about 3600 ft. above sea level, the middle one about 200 ft. higher and the highest about 200 ft. still higher. The highest point of the Hill is therefore less than 4000 ft. elevation.

4. It is only the lowest terrace that has some appreciable area on it, viz., about 50 acres, all of which is either in the occupation of ryots for cultivation or forms part of the village site and the Temple. The only source of water supply for this terrace is a hollow space behind the Temple, where rain water collects to a length of about 50 ft. with a breadth varying from 2 to 20 ft. The water is very dirty, owing to its being used by the villagers for washing soiled clothes in it, and for watering their cattle, and there is always a thick layer thick layer of moss and other vegetable matter upon its surface.

5. The middle terrace is the one on which stands the present Travellers' Bungalow, and the building owned by the Wesleyan Mission. This is a very small terrace with a large number of big boulders scattered all over, and with practically no space available for putting up any new building except the short bit of ground about a 100 ft. long and 50 ft. broad, on the way from this terrace to the next higher. And even this space is cut up into 3 or 4 bits by big boulders along its length and breadth, so that if any small buildings are put up at all, they will have to be very near each other. The source of water supply for this terrace is what is known as the "Pillirudeng" which is formed by a cleavage between two rocks, with a length of about 100 ft. and breadth ranging from 2 to 6 ft. It is about 18 ft. deep and is known to retain 2 or 3 ft. of water even during Summer. But the appearance of the water is very dirty and the Sun's rays never fall on it except for a few minutes at noon. The quantity of water that collects in this receptacle is also not sufficient to meet the requirements of even 50 visitors throughout the Season.

6. The highest terrace is formed by a collection of boulders and rocks one resting on another, with very little level space for putting up any buildings, and with much less water convenience. This is the terrace on which the Temple of " Yoga Narasimha Swami" is situated, which attracts a large number of pilgrims every year.

7. It will thus be seen from the above, that the Hill is neither sufficiently high for a Hill Station nor is the water convenience sufficient and good, to attract people from distant places. Other conditions also are not very favourable for developing it into a Hill Station, and it is not likely that, in spite of the best efforts of government, it will ever become a popular Hill Station. There is, therefore, not much use in starting operations on any large scale, but to confine attention to improve the existing convenience wherever necessary.

8. At present visitors to the Hill have accommodation in the Travellers' Bungalow on the middle terrace which has five good suites of rooms suites of rooms with the necessary furniture. A small stock of utensils, crockery, cutlery and glass ware, and in fact almost everything to meet the requirements of the few visitors to the Hill, are available at the Bungalow. Foodstuffs and vegetables and milk can be easily had from the village near by. For drinking purposes water is obtained from a well between the lowest and the middle terraces, but European visitors generally obtain water at a cost of 3 annas per pot from the foot of the lowest terrace at a distance of 2½ miles below, where there is a natural spring. The Visitors' Book does not show many visitors to the Hill now, in spite of these conveniences, and there does not appear to be any use in Government spending more money just at present, in adding more to it. All that may be tried at present, as an experimental measure, is to subsidise towards the maintenance of a Hindu Hotel during the Season. Any one who undertakes to keep one may be allowed the use of the Native Kitchen attached to the Bungalow, free of rent, together with an aggregate allowance of about ₹.70/- or 80/- for the whole Season of five months from February to June. If this arrangement should prove successful in attracting the people of the Tumkur District at least to this Hill and it is found that the demand for accommodation cannot be met by the existing Travellers' Bungalow, Government may then consider the question of constructing other buildings and increasing the establishment for that Hill Station, to cater to the wants of the visitors. The one bungalow on it, with its appertenances and establishment, may be transferred to the charge of this Department, which will do its best to canvass for visitors to it during the coming season.

I have the honor to be,

[illegible] Report of the Superintending Engineer, Northern Circle, and the D.P.I., Superintendent, Government Gardens, on [illegible] Reverypadrug and Kalkatti Bungalows with [illegible] Superintendent Government Gardens.

[illegible] two bungalows, the one on the Reverypadrug [illegible] at a height of about 2,600 ft. much lower [illegible] other one, and consequently being less affected [illegible] and having a much less rainfall, is much [illegible] affected by climatic and atmospheric conditions. It is [illegible] very near to and connected with the District Road [illegible] a good road practically uptp the very summit, and [illegible] in a better condition than the other one. The [illegible] floor of the main building are in [illegible] condition. [illegible] of the outhouses and the [illegible] very good, and may have to be provided [illegible]. The condition of the furniture is also [illegible] cots and chairs have to be [illegible] for the Indian kitchen and a [illegible] for the European kitchen, have to be provided. There is enough of crockery and cutlery to suffice [illegible] visitors. The present establishment which consists [illegible] cleaning is also considered sufficient, but the scale [illegible] of every one of the establishments may be raised by a [illegible] Servants quarters should be provided even on the Hill top.

[illegible] Rs. 3 - Cook - on Rs.10/-
[illegible] - Bhisty - on Rs.8/-
[illegible] - Sweeper - on Rs.6/-
[illegible] - Chowkidar, on Rs.6/-

[illegible] 5 suites of room, of which 4 are double ones [illegible] Rent. A rent of one rupee a day may be [illegible] suite of double rooms, and half a rupee for [illegible] additional suite of rooms, if occupied by the same party, party, irrespective of the number composing the party. The single room may be let out at half a rupee a day. Occupation without permission may extend upto 10 days, beyond which permission of the Chief Officer of the Department concerned should be obtained.

The Kalhatti bungalow is situated at a height of about 7,000 ft. and being subject to very high winds and heavy rainfall it is very much affected by the climatic conditions prevailing there. From about the middle of May till the end of December, the place is almost un-inhabitable. During the former, there are hardly any visitors stopping longer than two or three days owing to the difficulty of [illegible] means of conveyance to the place, and of obtaining provisions.

The main building consists of a Central Hall with a suite of rooms on either side of it, and a verandah in front and one behind, each with a suite of rooms on either side of them. Thus in all, there are 6 rooms with 5 bath rooms attached. The two opening into the Central Hall are the only ones that are of decent size and comfortable, while the rest are all very small ones. Of these former, the one on the north side of the building has no bath-room at present, but [illegible] to be provided for it. The back verandah and its rooms are rendered useless by the excessive moisture in them, owing to the beating of the rains against its walls. The roofing over this portion has to be extended further down so as to prevent the rain beating against the wall. The other walls and flooring are all in good condition. There is no ceiling at present to the building. To prevent the excessive [illegible] prevailing there, and add to the comforts and conveniences of visitors, it would be better if some sort of ceiling either of tiles or wood is given.

There is a sufficient quantity of all kinds of furniture except Tempoys, half a dozen of which have to be purchased. Owing to the severity of the weather, these and cutlery and Indian kitchen vessels lose their finish and very often become rusty. At the beginning of every season they have to be attended to.

The present line of outhouses is in a very bad condition and requires thorough repair. A separate set of outhouses for the Indian kitchen should be built in the rear part, but at a distance from it, after the design of such houses attached to Travellers' Bungalows all over the Province. Water can now be brought from a distance from a spring by gravitation. It would be convenient if a pipe line is laid from the spring to a spot very near the building. One set of Indian kitchen utensils should be purchased and kept in the Bungalow for the use of visitors.

A daily rent of one rupee may be levied for each set of the two suites of rooms in the Hall and half a rupee for the rest irrespective of the number of visitors.

The existing establishment consists of the following, which we consider sufficient for the present, but would recommend an increase of Rs.2/- to the Vaity, Rs.1/- to the Kotwal and the other servants.

Establishment :- 1. Kotwal on Rs. 12/-
1. Vaity on Rs. 10/-
1. Lascarran on Rs.8/-
1. Tasty on Rs. 3/-

This building together with all its appurtenances requires to be looked into by a responsible officer of the Department at the commencement of every season. Every repair necessary should be attended to early and the whole
